

ALIAS NAME (S)

NONE

a zine about my name

none, the unbecoming

i was born without a name, "none" is just a placeholder so people have something to call me i've never felt like i had a name, so none seems appropriate

"what do i call you?" "what's your name?" none "oh" lol "okay, none, so..."

filling out forms like "Name: None" is funny to me because im a fuckin idiot the unbecoming ? hm, well, something about undoing the act of becoming.. the second and archaic meaning of the word. to un-become all the things i was forced to be because of traumatic circumstances.

to un-become all the things people have tried to abusively and coercively force me to be- namely-straight, cis, neurotypical, mentally sane, a normal looking person instead of a freak ass bitch with a fucked up brain and asocial tendencies

to undo the act of becoming in an act of transformation, an act of finding myself, an act of shedding old skins, an act of becoming who i really am, who i really want to be, who i really could be. destruction as creation. solve et coagula. take it apart and put it back together as something new. construct the self i really want to be without abandoning who i've been.

REAL NAME (?)

None

ideally i do not want to be referred to with any name at all, ever, but people and the government need something to refer to you, specifically, individually, so, i had to pick something. none suits it.

Named entity expected. Got none.

it's not actually very gender related for me despite being an it/its nonbinary teratogender weirdass freak queer, but, nonbinary people stereotypically have weird names like "sock" or "dirt" so. i guess it suits that too.
